Nuisance Ants

Nuisance ants have become one of the biggest challenges in recent years. They have simply increased as a pest.

There are several different ants that fall in this group, but the treatments are similar. One problem is the nest is often in the ground under a slab or in walls or the crawl space in insulation or other concealed areas.

Treatment usually consists of a combination of sprays and baits. What is effective in one situation may not be in another. It often takes a number of different treatment methods to eliminate the problem.

Monthly service may be necessary to eliminate the problem. Treatments to the outside perimeter are usually all that is necessary to prevent ants reinfesting once the original problem is eliminated.
